IS APPROVED BY
PROPERTY OWNERSBoard Will Pass Ordinance

DEFICIT IN SEWER FUND

Approval of the proposal to raise by special assessment the sum of $7,014.21 to be used for the repair of Antioch's septic tank plant, cleaning Sequoit creek, the building of a bridge, and the acquisition of additional land and the retirement of a deficit of $1,770.00 in the sewer fund, was given by property owners at a public hearing before the Board of Local Improvements here Tuesday night.

No opposition to the project was voiced by taxpayers, but inquiry was made regarding the sewer deficit of $1,770 which is included in and made a part of the proposed special assessment fund against the property benefited by the improvement, which will include practically all real estate within the corporate limits of the village except lots in the south and southwest sections that are not served by the present sewer system.

Mayor Explains Deficit

Funds for the installation of sewer mains and septic tank were raised on a special bond issue to be retired in ten years, President Bartlett explained, but after the original estimate had been made complications arose through the fact that some of the mains were laid across private property on permanent easement rights, and that for damages claimed assessments on certain parcels of land were reduced, which fact, together with inaccuracies in the original estimate for installation and maintenance, caused the deficit. No extensive repairs have been made on the plant for more than 15 years, the mayor said, and what little money has been needed has been taken from the general fund of the village.

Will Pass Ordinance

The measure, having received the sanction of the property owners, will be put in the form of an ordinance and passed at the next meeting of the board, the local improvements body announced following the meeting, and Village Attorney E. M. Runyard was instructed to draft the ordinance authorizing the improvement. Due to the fact that the date for the regular November meeting falls on election night, the board has postponed the session until Thursday night, November 6.

SENATE ASPIRANTS
IN SPIRITED BATTLEMrs. McCormick Pledged to Stand by Wet-Dry
Referendum

With Chicago as the battleground in the last lap of the campaign, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican candidate for the United States senate, and James Hamilton Lewis, her Democratic opponent, are conducting a campaign that is both spirited and desperate—desperate in the sense that defeat at the polls next Tuesday will practically eliminate the vanquished one from politics. The independent Republican candidate, Mrs. Lottie O'Neill, is not conceded a chance.

All three candidates are radical in their statements. J. Ham Lewis is the avowed dripping wet candidate, while Mrs. O'Neill carries aloft the banner of the dries, both firm in their attitude regardless of the result of the referendum vote on the question next Tuesday. Mrs. McCormick is, therefore, the only candidate for the senate to pledge herself to stand by the referendum, or for the old maxim of "majority rule."

"AUNT LUCIA" DRAWS
RECORD ATTENDANCEHome Talent Play Thought
One of the Best Ever Produced

"Laugh your troubles away." The crowd which packed the high school auditorium Thursday and Friday nights to witness the play, "Aunt Lucia", sponsored by the Epworth League, was given innumerable opportunities to forget themselves in the ridiculous predicaments of the actors. If G. O. Reed, who headed the cast as Aunt Lucia, was not known to be really serious-minded, it could be said that he had misused his calling. His actions and facial expressions at all times convulsed the audience. The college seniors and their girls were very collegially and "sparkingly" played by Edmund Jeffers, Wm. Nelson, Mrs. Roger Darbonne and Miss Fannie Westlake. Professor Gaddis, the eccentric bachelor could not have been played more eccentrically than by John E. Moore, or his sweetheart, the dean, who had waited half a lifetime for him to pop the question, more sentimentally than by Mrs. H. B. Gaston. Rev. Bohi and Otto Klass, the butler and egg man, were laughable in their ludicrous efforts to win the hand of the fake wealthy Aunt Lucia. S. E. Pollock made a very benevolent college president, and Mrs. S. B. Nelson a most beautiful haughty president's wife. In the first scene, Dan Kelly, Bob King and Homer Fawcett gave a realistic portrayal of the hardships of a freshman—and also of seniors. The luckiest girl of all, she favored by the love of Aunt Lucia, Miss Jerry Watson, was Cornelia Roberts who plainly revealed all a college girl's love and reactions.

Flapper Chorus "Awful"

Screams of delight and uproarious applause greeted members of the flapper chorus, which were impersonated by none other than Antioch's business and professional dignitaries. The brazen deceit of the whole procession was something new and unusual, to say the least. Imagine the hilarity of the crowd when S. B. Nelson, dignified banker, strutted his stuff across the stage as Peaches Brownling. Can you think of O. E. Hachmeister as Gloria Swanson? Next introduced was L. O. Bright, as Baby Face. (Faces are fortunes, you know). Then big, good-natured Geo. Rhodes got hard-hearted—he was Hard-Hearted Hannah. And it old Cloc of the Nile could have opened her eyes for the moment, Joe Panowski would have showed her a lot of new stuff, maybe Cloc turned green, but she stayed dead. Rolfe Grutzmacher frolicked across the stage as the Athletic Girl just like nobody's business; and didn't Alan Whitmore show the concealed females around here something—Alan was the Beau.

MORAN RETURNS TO LAKE COUNTY;
ARRESTED; FREED"Public Enemy" Gives
$15,000.00 Bail for Release

Arrested a second time within ten days, George "Dugs" Moran was released Monday on $15,000 bonds by Circuit Judge Edward D. Shurtliff before whom the Cook county "public enemy" was brought on a writ of habeas corpus.

Moran signed his own bonds for $10,000 on a vagrancy charge while Attorney Thomas Symmes of Chicago, gave bond of $5,000 on a conspiracy charge.

Attorney Clair C. Edwards, who met Moran Sunday morning after his second arrest at the Elizabeth Casalsy resort at Bluff Lake, filed the writ of habeas corpus directed against Sheriff Lawrence Doolittle in circuit court early Monday morning.

The crowd wondered where E. A. Grutzmacher learned to impersonate an old maid school teacher. The mighty muscles of Fred Hawkins fairly bulged and he really did look like the Powerful Kairinka; and you've just got to hand it to John Truach as the Campus Flirt; and the delightful Dolores Costello was impersonated by Elmer Hunter, stage clothes and everything. Carl Ball pictured another movie queen, Joan Crawford. (The boys should be in the movies). A vision of the Future was glimpsed when Bill Anderson romped across the stage as the Bride of 1940.

The Girls' Chorus which appeared several times, executing various dance steps, was very clever and spirited, the "Raincoat Parade", or "Singin' in the Rain", and the rural scene as enacted to the sprightly tune of "Out in the New Worn Hymn", were particularly pleasing. All the musical numbers were lively, and the harmony parts very well blended. The baby pageant, with Mrs. Bohi as special dramatic reader took the audience back to a cunning, happy "Babyland."

Miss Kessler, of the Universal Producing company of Fairfield, Iowa, is deserving of unlimited credit for coaching the actors into perfecting their parts, in such a brief time. There doesn't seem to be any lack of home talent in Antioch.

SPECIAL BALLOTS ARE CONFUSING TO VOTERSPropositions to Be Voted on Not Well Understood

FIVE PROPOSITIONS SUBMITTED

Voters at next Tuesday's election will face a confusing array of ballots when they go to the polls to vote, for besides the regular candidate ballot they will be expected to mark their preference on five propositions affecting state government. Very little information regarding the explicit purposes of the several measures is carried on the ballot itself; thus, if the voter has not taken the time to gain a complete understanding of the propositions he will be unable to mark his ballot intelligently and is very likely to mark it exactly opposite to the way he intended to vote.

The Conservation Ballot

Three million children in Illinois will be benefited by the establishment of state owned forest and public recreation grounds in every county as provided for in the State Wide system of Conservation and Forest Preserves and Public Recreation Grounds ballot, according to proponents of the measure, and one of the leading organizations sponsoring it is the Illinois Forest Preserve and Conservation Council of which C. F. Mansfield is secretary. If the project is successful at the polls next Tuesday the farmer, the business man, and that great army of persons who can not afford a place to enjoy the great outdoors will be benefited, Mr. Mansfield declares.

The program will not cost the taxpayer one cent, it is claimed, but the hunting, fishing and similar licenses will pay the principal and interest as well as the operating costs of the department. The sale this year was more than 800,000 licenses. Official records show that these fees not only do support the Department of Conservation but that more than 10,000 acres of land have been bought; besides, under the Len Small regime it was stated on the highest authority that the department was just about breaking even, but with the discharge of many unnecessary wardens and other employees there appears to have been a great increase in the earnings.

Certain Politicians Oppose

The source of the only opposition is coming from certain politicians who are obviously are displeased at the prospect of a Conservation Department that will be honestly and efficiently administered. They apparently do not like the advisory board or the provision that the license fees must first be used to pay these bonds and interest, and what is left over can go for payrolls and other expenses.

Has Many Endorsements

The conservation measure has the endorsement of the American Legion, Illinois State Federation of Labor, Illinois Sportsman's League, Isaac Walton League, Kiwanis International, and many others.

One of the provisions is that the Department of Conservation acquire an average of 2000 acres of upland in each county where possible.

LYONS, MC DONOUGH
TO RECEIVE WINNING
SUPPORT IN LAKE CO.Tactics of McHenry County
Central Committee Hinder

BOLGER MAY BE THIRD MAN

The chances for a three-way Republican victory in the 8th district representative race were minimized last week through the action of the McHenry county Republican central committee and other political leaders in that unit of the district, when McHenry county voters were called upon to give William M. Carroll three votes and ignore the Lake county men, Richard J. Lyons and Lee McDonough, able legislators, who are up for re-election.

Specimen ballots marked by the McHenry county Republican central committee were displayed at a meeting of the Lake County Young People's Republican League at Waukegan Thursday night.

Max Przyborski, chairman of the Lake County Republican Central committee, displayed the ballots and a copy of the Woodstock Sentinel in which it was reported that the McHenry county leaders are urging three votes for Carroll and none for Rep. Richard J. Lyons and Rep. Lee McDonough of Lake County.

"The Lake county committee" said Mr. Przyborski, "marked their specimen ballots with a cross in the Republican circle which means that Carroll of McHenry county and Lyons and McDonough of Lake county each get one vote, but after we had the McHenry situation called to our attention, a special letter was sent out to all precinct committeemen in Lake county instructing them to urge the voters to vote the straight Republican ticket but giving Lyons and McDonough each one and one-half votes instead of dividing with Carroll."

There are enough Republican votes in the district, if evenly divided—one vote to each candidate—to elect all three, but with Lake county, the most populous unit of the district, concentrating upon Lyons and McDonough, the chances of the young Woodstock attorney are materially lessened, while the outlook for Thos. Bolger, the Democratic aspirant, who will receive solid backing of his party throughout the district seems very favorable. With the Lake county vote clinching victory for both Lyons and McDonough, Carroll and Bolger will fight it out for third place—and victory.

LAKE COUNTY G. O. P.
CANDIDATES CONFIDENT
AS ELECTION NEARSSeven Local Candidates Not Worried by Democratic
AspirantsCOUNTY SHERIFF RACE
ATTRACTS MAJOR INTEREST

Unperturbed as election day draws near, the seven Republican nominees for county office seem little worried over the outcome of next Tuesday's balloting when G. O. P. leaders predict that the entire slate of Republicans will be swept into office.

Of the seven offices involved in the campaign, two of them, probate judge and probate clerk, have no opposition. Martin C. Decker, probate judge, and John R. Bullock, probate clerk, have been in office for the last eight years. The Democrats made no effort to bring out candidates against them.

County Judge Perry L. Persons heads the Republican ticket as nominee for re-election. Both Judge Persons and County Clerk L. A. Headee, who also is Republican nominee for another term, have been in office since 1910. W. C. Petty, for superintendent of schools; Jay B. Morse, for treasurer, and Lester T. Tiffany, for sheriff, are the other Republican nominees.

Jadrich Heads Democratic Ticket The Democrats have a slate of five candidates headed by Joseph P. Jadrich for judge and includes Peter Duffy for treasurer, Mrs. Moody for superintendent of schools, Joseph P. Daly for county clerk, and Herbert Yager for sheriff.

The Democrats, it is rumored, are centering their chief fight against Lester T. Tiffany in the hope of landing Herbert Yager in the office of county sheriff. The Democrats, it is said, have sought to capitalize upon the mud-slinging primary campaign last April when five Republican aspirants sought the coveted G. O. P. nomination.

Quiet Rumors Opponents of Tiffany during the fall campaign have circulated propaganda that some of the Republicans he defeated in the primary race were turning their support to the Democratic nominee, but last week the rumors were quieted by a signed statement from the Republican county central committee to the effect that all leading candidates had joined the Tiffany forces and declared the party was united in support of the Lake Forest police chief.

The committee expressed the opinion that Lake county was highly fortunate to have Chief Tiffany as the nominee for sheriff, especially at this time when gangsters and hoodlums were threatening more than ever to locate in counties adjoining Cook county. Chief Tiffany, the committee said, as sheriff would prevent any invasion of Lake county by the hoodlums and racketeers.

G. O. P. Victory Predicted It is not believed that County Judge Persons, who seeks re-election, has even a close rival in the candidacy of his Democratic adversary Jos. A. Jadrich, North Chicago attorney, or that the chances of Lew A. Hendee are in the least menaced by the candidacy of Joseph P. Daly, Democratic aspirant for county clerk. Likewise Jay B. Morse has the edge over Peter Duffy in the county treasurer derby, and W. C. Petty, Republican nominee for county superintendent of schools, even at this date is conceded a winner over Mrs. Frances C. Moody, the Democratic challenger.

School Money Theft
Being Investigated

Principal W. C. Petty and school authorities are quietly continuing their investigations into the loss of from twelve to fifteen dollars which mysteriously disappeared Tuesday night from the various class rooms and Mr. Petty's office. Stamps were also taken. The money taken from the teachers' desks, varying from small amounts to several dollars, had been saved for Halloween parties tomorrow afternoon.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1930

PROSPERITY is up for election running to overthrow DEPRESSION. It's for the people to decide which will be chosen. Every man and every woman is privileged to ballot every day.

DEPRESSION has no rightful place with a hundred and twenty million people, exchanging goods and services—capable—accustomed and willing to work—more highly skilled than other peoples—leaders in efficiency and progressiveness—backed by the vast natural resources of the United States. When we make it possible for the man who works to have a job we make it possible for him to buy food for his family and so help all business, including that of the farmer.

The rest of the world is of small importance compared with that free market of 129,000,000 people—homogeneous—of like tastes, habits and aspirations—living under the same laws—free of trade barriers. Foreign trade may be troubled by tariffs and revolutions, but at their peak our exports represented only five and a half billion of dollars of gross business in a year out of a total American income of ninety billions. Stagnation of circulation is what's the matter with agriculture and with business. Everyone can help to get that circulation moving again.

Government can't make Prosperity—alone. Bankers and other business leaders can't make Prosperity—alone. It's the people, united in opinion and purpose and courage, who determine Prosperity. They can elect it—none other.

Ballots that will be validly counted for PROSPERITY are of many kinds. Some one of them every man and woman can cast. For example:

Help a deserving man or woman to get a little paying work—or, better, a regular job. Spend wisely and not too timidly, and anticipate scheduled expenditures so far as is practicable.

Turn the deaf ear to false, mischievous rumors; and don't repeat them. If you do hear them.

Be willing to pay a fair price. Don't take advantage of the other man's necessity. Recognize that he has as good claim to a fair profit as you.

When a vampire that fattens on the miseries of others shows up, help to make him unpopular.

Discourage calamity howlers.

Keep business moving evenly, and remember that, to the average man, his job is his particular business. When possible, renege him against his fear of losing it. Save, but save wisely, not in fright. Invest for the profit that sound enterprise pays and for the added profit that will come after the hysteria of pessimism has passed.

RISING GASOLINE TAXES OPPOSED

At the present time every state levies a tax against gasoline, ranging from two to six cents a gallon, and it is forecast that the total revenue this year will reach the record sum of $550,000,000. Gasoline is subjected to the largest sales tax of any commodity, with the possible exception of cigarettes.

However, many legislators are not satisfied even with this. Campaigns are underway in a number of States—namely Louisiana, West Virginia, Maine, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Washington, Nebraska and Colorado—to push the tax rates still higher. In form of taxation with the public and apparently many officials still believe that "one cent more won't make any difference."

There are unmistakable signs that the public, long patient, is tiring of excessively high rates and potential increases. The voters of North Dakota recently refused to increase the tax from three to four cents a gallon, and the disapproving voice of the public has been heard in other states.

ARE YOU A TRAFFIC CHOPPER?

There is increasing difficulty in the traveling public making a definite estimate of speed of an on-coming automobile who is cutting in and out of the line of traffic, according to a bulletin issued by the Highway Department of the Automobile Club of Illinois.

This is particularly evident at night time. It seems to be the opinion of responsible observers that many accidents are due to this one thing alone.

Mr. Stoeckel, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles of Connecticut, attributes much of this to the fact that motorists are being "stepped up continuously." The average speed is far above old ones. It is, therefore, no longer safe to presume that there is time to get around one or two cars before an approaching car gets too near. Expert drivers often misjudge the speed of an approaching vehicle.

According to Mr. Stoeckel, last year in his state alone there were 408 drivers who cut out at the wrong time and caused accidents, death resulted in several cases and in every accident there was considerable damage to property. In more than 200 of these cases the accidents were on straight-aways where the view ahead was good.

Without question the increase of speed permitted to the traveling public makes it doubly necessary that a great care be used in attempting to pass traffic on a two-way road. The Drivers License Bill as proposed by the Automobile Club of Illinois and to be presented by Springfield at the coming session will tend to help materially in checking the thoughtless as well as reckless type of autist who is deliberate in his haste to getting "nowheres fast."

Horton—Try Them

There should be no squabble today over the question of blonde or brunette, as you are given your choice. Of course, as these are the best of their kind, having been honored with the blue ribbon at the Antioch fair, prejudices might be forgotten, and both of them given a trial.

Mrs. C. L. Kutil offers her recipe for the prize Dark Fruit Cake. This would be ideal at Thanksgiving or Christmas.

1/2 cup butter creamed with 1/4 cup white sugar
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup seeded raisins (cut in pieces)
1/2 cup dates (cut fine)
1/2 cup citron (cut fine)

2 tablespoons molasses or corn syrup
2 eggs
10 tablespoons sour milk
2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon soda in flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1/2 teaspoon lemon extract
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract

Mix all together in the order given, then bake in loaf tin in slow oven for about 1 hour.

Sponge Cake

Mrs. Claire Horton gives a recipe for sponge cake which she learned in school and which has proved very successful. The amounts in this recipe make a small cake, so if a large one is desired, the measurements may be doubled.

3 eggs beaten five minutes
1 cup sugar, beat with egg
1 cup flour with 1 teaspoon baking powder

1 teaspoon vanilla
At the last add 1/2 cup boiling water. Mix all together in the order given and bake in a moderate oven for about an hour, or until light, dry and fluffy.

Experiments in two of the leading universities in this section recently proved that the best angel food cakes are baked in an oven of 300 degrees Fahrenheit.

Cultivate Rare
Daintiness, Blondes,
Through Color

Do gentlemen prefer blondes? That will always remain a question. However, if you are a blonde, make the most of it. You have the opportunity for that lovely pure daintiness that your darker-hued sisters find difficult to achieve. Remember, though, especially if you are a pale blonde, that unless you choose your colors with care, you may appear colorless and washed out beside a brunette friend. The following list will prove helpful to both pale and florid blondes.

Colors Becoming to the Pale Blond
White—Becoming in all textures.
Black—Small quantities in combination with white or color; large masses of transparent material fairly good.

Gray—Light gray best.
Brown—To be avoided except in small quantities combined with other color. Very light, dull brown, like acorn, sand, etc., good because dull enough to enhance the hair by analogy and the eyes by contrast without unduly bringing out the purple in the skin.

Yellow—Only light, pinkish yellow good. Bright yellow brings out purple in the skin unpleasantly.

Red—Fair. Dull red, rose-reds better than orange reds.
Pink—Rose-pinks good. Pale, yellow-pinks, fair; deep yellow-pinks to be avoided.

Purple—Sometimes makes the skin look very pale.

Blue—Good because it enhances the color of the hair and eyes. Dull blue better than bright blue. Very bright blue-green makes the cheeks look pinker.

Green—Good because it brings out pink in the skin. Blue-greens better than yellow-greens because more complimentary to the rose-pinks of the skin.

Colors Becoming to the Florid Blond
White—Blue-white, pure, and cream-white good in all textures.
Black—Good in all textures.

Gray—Blue-gray and neutral tones

Turned-back brims dominate the styles of hats this season. Made of felt, rich velvet and velvet, they stress the vogue for the jaunty beretta, the chic draped turban effects, and the striking new double brim that is moulded in quaint off-the-face styles. They are pictureque, and quite generally becoming, although they cannot be worn indiscriminately by just everyone, as the wide-brimmed hats were. A beauty specialist recently recommended the use of less make-up on the face, when this type of hat is worn, as the features are set in bold relief against the tight-fitting hat.

good; brown-gray such as taupe, to be avoided.

Brown—To be avoided because it makes the complexion appear dull and emphasizes skin shadows. Very light, dull brown, such as sand or pongee, fair.

Yellow—Pale, dull, orange-yellow can be worn, especially under artificial light. Pure yellow to be avoided because it brings out the purple in the skin.

Red—Dark, purple-reds good; yellow-reds to be avoided.

Pink—Rose-pinks good unless the personal coloring is very bright, then bright pinks make the skin seem coarse.

Purple—Good in almost all values and chromas.

Blue—All blues good unless personal coloring is very bright, then bright green-blues make the skin appear coarse and red.

Green—Good in all dull tones. Bright greens and yellow-greens make bright coloring seem coarse and heavy.

Know Illinois!

A Chicago tourist became justly peeved last Sunday after an unsuccessful attempt which consumed most of the day in trying to locate Fox River Springs. The man, had been told in the city, he said, to drive to Antioch and here to inquire the way. It wasn't his lucky day for he met no one who could direct him.

This man's experience is very often the case of tourists who seek information here, for there are very few people who know the locality sufficiently well to have at their tongue's tip information regarding some 175 subdivisions and the hundreds of resorts that dot the region. Suitable advertising data, about the many places of interest, if placed in the hands of local merchants, would help to eliminate the evil.

By the way, Fox River Springs is just five miles west of Antioch on Route 173, (Hilchmond road) at the Fox River bridge.

Hints For Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

CANDIES make a delicious garnish for many simple desserts, and save the time necessary for preparing more elaborate ones. Try crumbling up chocolate fudge over junket or vanilla ice cream. Oarish cherry gelatine with quartered marshmallows and chopped candied cherries.

To make an old dust mop practically as good as new, put a large tablespoon of concentrated lye in a pail half full of boiling water and let the mop ball in it. Rinse thoroughly several times and put in the sun to dry. One or two tablespoons of kerosene added to the ends when bollog white clothes will make the clothes much whiter.

TOPPY'S TRAVELS

SYNOPSIS: Topsy leaves his home to follow his canary, Lony, who flies away. After an adventure with Mr. Frog, and with the Dewdrops, he captures Egopli, son of the Pillow-Queen, the enemy of his friend, the Cloud-Queen. The Pillow-Queen is frantic, and the Cloud-Queen promises to have a meeting to decide the boy's fate. She sends a messenger for a key to a locked door and tells Topsy that a pool lies behind the door from which she had always learned of the plans of her enemy, until she went away, and upon returning, found the country in the hands of the enemy. Continue—

"Did the Pillows hurt your people?" asked Topsy.

"They couldn't starve them, you know, but they forced hundreds of them into the sunlight to die. Others they imprisoned or used as slaves. I've worried so much, and I'm so unhappy for my poor miserable people."

Topsy was silent a moment in sympathy. Then he said, "Then that is why they wouldn't let you have the key?"

"No," the Queen replied, "I believe they only suspect that I receive some power from the pool—I doubt if they really understand its importance, for I'm sure that they are unable to read its messages. However, I remain to be seen. That foolish Pillow-Queen has some shrewd advisors, but if they will allow that boy to bring me the key, it will be a sign that they do not understand."

"You can return this Egopli to her then, can't you?"

"Yes, Topsy. We shall have no more need of him then, because we shall once more be protected by the pool. You don't like Egopli do you?"

"No!" Topsy declared. "Will we have to keep him if they do not return the key?"

"Yes, we will," the Queen laughed. "But if she does understand, and will not allow me to have the key, we must think of some means of threatening Egopli, so that she will be forced to give me the key."

"Then she must, simply must return the key!" Topsy cried.

The Queen laughed, then smiled sadly. "No matter what happens, I shall receive happiness from having such a brave general to fight for me."

Oh, Topsy, you give me so much courage!"

Topsy was nearly overcome with joy. "I like to fight for you," he told her proudly. "I wish my mother, and Nancy and Jackie could see me, now."

The Queen opened her eyes, and looked into Topsy's eager little face. "You have never told me about your mother," she said softly. "Is she beautiful?"

Topsy suddenly felt a lump in his throat. "Why, I don't know, he gulped, "but she's awfully nice."

Then he turned his face away, because he was afraid that the Queen would think him too unmanly for a general, if she saw his tears.

"Where are your mother's sister and brother now?" she asked kindly. "At home, I guess," Topsy looked into the Queen's eyes and knew that she would understand his sudden homesickness. So he talked as fast as he could, tumbling his words all together, and told her all about why he had left home, and about his adventures. He felt better when he had finished and was entirely happy again when the Queen said, "You must bring your family here to visit after you go home."

"That will be fun!" Topsy laughed. You see Topsy had forgotten that he was lost, and couldn't find the way home.

A GAY GHOST PARTY

HUSH! Is that a witch on a broomstick, or only a queer shaped cloud sweeping across the moon? Is that a black cat or a shadow out there in the yard? Was that sound an owl hooting in a tree or merely an automobile horn?

Pleasant thrills have utilized the spaces of myriads of people ever since the dawn of Christianity on "holy eve," known throughout the English speaking world as "Hallowe'en," which is the evening before "All Hallow's" or "All Saints' day," November first.

This is a time for ghostly tales by the firelight, and merry fun such as bobbing for apples, and ascertaining your matrimonial future by means of many time-honored tests. But provision must be made also for the "cats" if you are going to give a Hallowe'en party, so here is a suggested menu with appropriately spooky names for the various dishes. It should be served in an appropriate setting of Jack O' Lantern pumpkin heads, black cats and witches wearing tall conical hats.

Here's the Menu
Spook Cocktail
Witches' Thin Broth
Cauldron Tomatoes
Roast Squab
Shoe String Potatoes
Black Cat Nuggets
Hot Biscuits
Frozen Eric Salad
Broomstick Pudding

After you've finished admiring the special Hallowe'en names of these dishes, you will undoubtedly want to know how to make them. So here are the recipes, calculated to serve eight people each.

Spook Cocktail: Drain one No. 2 can of sliced peaches, and cut very fine. Mash three bananas and add one cup of white grape juice, stirring until smooth. Add the peaches, six tablespoons lemon juice, four tablespoons white corn syrup and two tablespoons yellow grapes. Measure out one tea-spoon gelatin in four tablespoons cold water; then dissolve in the boiling hot syrup from the can of peaches. Add to first mixture, cool, and pour into refrigerator trays or into an ice cream mold. Freeze to a mush, stirring several times. Be sure not to freeze solid, and serve in glass cocktail cups.

The Witches' Thin Broth is simply the condensed you can get in cans, but the Cauldron Tomatoes require careful preparation.

The Main Dishes

Cauldron Tomatoes: Cut a slice from eight ripe tomatoes, and scoop out the centers. Sprinkle inside with salt. Boil one-half cup rice, and drain. Make a white sauce of four tablespoons butter, four tablespoons flour and two cups milk, add one-third cup grated cheese, and stir till melted. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Break the contents of one 3 1/2-ounce can of sardines into small pieces, and add; then combine the sauce with the rice. Fill the tomatoes with this mixture, cover with buttered crumbs, and bake in a hot oven for about fifteen minutes.

Black Cat Nuggets: Add one tablespoon melted butter, three-fourths teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, and four tablespoons flour mixed with one-eighth teaspoon baking powder to one cup of canned corn. Add one beaten egg yolk and fold in one stiffly-beaten egg white. Drop by small spoonfuls into hot fat (375° to 390°), and fry a golden brown. Drain well. This will make about twenty small nuggets. If you want more, double the recipe. Be sure to choose a solid pack of corn.

Salad and Dessert

Frozen Eric Salad: Drain the contents of a No. 1 can of pears, and cut in small pieces. Chop half a stuffed orange fine, and add with two tablespoons of the stuffed orange syrup. (You can get these stuffed oranges in a glass jar at your grocer's.) Add one-fourth cup white grapes, skinned, seeded and cut in halves or quarters. Beat one-half cup cream, and add one-half cup mayonnaise and a few grains of salt. Fold into the fruit, and pour into a fancy or a loaf-shaped ice cream mold. Cover with wax paper and the light-tight cover, and pack in ice and salt till frozen. Remove, slice and serve on lettuce. The developer of this recipe says that it's especially delicious.

Broomstick Pudding: Mix together one-half cup suet, one-half cup molasses and one-half cup sour milk. Add one beaten egg and three-fourths cup bread crumbs. Add three-fourths cup whole wheat flour, two teaspoons baking soda, one-half teaspoon soda and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Sifted together, the grated rind of one orange, one cup of chopped figs and one-half cup chopped vacuum-packed nuts. Pour into a greased pudding mold, cover and steam three hours. Serve with foamy sauce or with hard sauce. This recipe serves ten to twelve, but watch the pudding disappear!

Williams Party Return From Trip

Report Interesting Scenes of Eastern Iowa and North- ern Illinois

Mrs. D. A. Williams, accompanied by her son, Dr. R. D. Williams, and daughter, Miss Ruth Williams, returned home last Friday from a trip through northern Illinois and eastern Iowa.

They were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Bailey while in Iowa. Homer Bailey, Mr. Bailey's father, formerly of Antioch, is still quite active at the age of 84 years, according to Mrs. Williams. Of his grandchildren, Glenn is county treasurer at Magnoketa; Kenneth, a graduate of West Point, lives in Brooklyn, N. Y.; three daughters are married—Helen is living near Baldwin, Conn. at Bellevue, and Lulu at Berwyn, Ill. Another daughter is teaching in the high school in Magnoketa; and Floyd, the youngest, is now in Colorado.

The Williams party visited the Iowa State park at Iron Hill, which is opposite the U. S. arsenal and proving grounds of the war; Lakehurst, a summer resort on the Magnoketa river; and Paradise Valley, a garden farm of 400 acres.

One of the points of interest on their trip was the village of St. Donatus, an old French settlement, with stone houses still in a well preserved state. The dwellings are at one end, and the stables at the other. Mrs. Williams noted the many pot holes through which the early settlers defended themselves from the Indians. They also visited a Catholic church on a hill called "The Sermon on the Mount"; before reaching it, they passed thirteen prayer houses. The Williams' were enthusiastic about the beauty of the region.

Before returning home, they visited the Magnoketa Caves, caverns and scenes which greatly resemble the Wisconsin Dells.

They returned by way of Dubuque, stopping in Galena, and visiting General Grant's home, and driving over the beautiful Terrapin Ridge.

Another interesting feature of their trip was the drive past Mrs. McCormick's Rock River Farms at Byron, and to the Artists' Colony near Oregon, with Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Christman, Rockford; they also viewed the statue of Black Hawk, and the "Pines", an Illinois State Park.

LOCAL GIRL MARRIED QUIETLY TUESDAY

A very quiet wedding was solemnized Tuesday afternoon at Salem, when Miss Hazel Norman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Norman, became the bride of Charles Thornton of Trevor, nephew of Mrs. Donald McKay, with whom he has lived for many years. Rev. Stromberg officiated.

Miss Helen Hostetter was bridesmaid and Milton Patrick, best man. The bride was very simply and charmingly attired in a blue suit, and wore a corsage of flowers.

After the ceremony, the wedding party motored to Kenosha, attending a movie, and enjoying a dinner afterwards. Although it is not known definitely where they are spending their honeymoon, it is thought that they went to Milwaukee.

Miss Norman has been employed in the Antioch Bakery for the past three years. The couple will make their future home in Antioch.

RAYS RETURN FROM SIX WEEKS' WESTERN TOUR

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Ray returned this week from a motor trip through the west. They went by the north-west route to California, stopping in Salt Lake City, Utah, and in Wyoming, continuing down the Pacific coast. Five days were spent in Burbank, California, visiting relatives and friends. On the return trip, they stopped to view the Sunset Crater, an extinct volcano at Flagstaff, Arizona. A visit was made to the Petrified Forest in Arizona, and the Rays brought home souvenirs of this Forest. They also crossed over into Mexico, and made a visit to the Grand Canyon. They report a wonderful trip, with little tire trouble, and fine weather, although they were fortunate enough to escape two snowstorms by one day.

Walter Scott and Rudolph Strametz returned Monday after having attended the National Dairy Exposition at Cleveland, O., and spending eight days touring the east.

George Wagner and Homer La Plant returned Thursday from a trip to New York, and points East, reporting a very enjoyable trip. They did not have time to tour the west this year, and visit Yellowstone National Park.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Probation After Death" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 20.

The Golden Text was, "It shall be said in that day, Lo, this is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us: this is the Lord; we have waited for him, we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation" (Isaiah 25:9).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be forever: nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it; and God doeth it, that men should fear before him. That which hath been is now; and that which is to be hath already been; and God requirereth that which is past" (Eccl. 3:14, 15).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The belief that matter has life results by the universal law of mortal mind, in a belief in death. So man, tree, and flower are supposed to die; but the fact remains, that God's universe is spiritual and immortal" (p. 289).

NEEDS FOR RED CROSS SERVICE ON INCREASE, SAYS CHAIRMAN PAYNE

Disaster Relief and Service to War Veterans Make Heavy Demands—First Aid on Highways New Plan.

Demands upon the public services that the American Red Cross is organized to give are increasingly heavy, and will continue to be so in the future, John Barton Payne, chairman, has announced.

The two major services of the society—service to war veterans and their dependents, and relief in disasters—show each year a greater number of persons helped by the Red Cross.

Pension legislation passed recently for World War Veterans, and increased allotments to all Spanish-American War Veterans, have given to Chapters and the national society many thousands of additional cases to handle, Judge Payne said.

In the past year help was given in 108 disasters. Ninety of these were in the United States, twelve in foreign possessions and six were in foreign countries.

Health activities of the Red Cross also are being extended, especially in the rural communities where all health authorities agree the greatest need exists. Red Cross, with 794 nurses in its employ, is the greatest employer of public health nurses in rural areas in the United States.

In its campaign against accidental deaths, begun twenty years ago with its life saving and first aid programs, the Red Cross now has adopted an additional program—that of combating the huge toll of life from automobile accidents on the highways.

Expenditures of the Red Cross in the past year were $4,254,796.34, of which $1,208,151.09 was spent in disaster relief, the chairman pointed out.

"The Red Cross depends upon the public for its support, through their memberships enrolled once each year in the period from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day," Judge Payne said.

"We do not receive any support from the Government, or through other taxation, although as the President of the United States is president of the society, and one-third of its governing members are representatives of U. S. Departments, it ranks as a semi-governmental agency."

"By joining as a member, in the local Red Cross Chapter, once each year, during the annual Roll Call, every citizen will have a part in carrying on this great humanitarian task."

Motor Injuries Treated By Red Cross First Aid

In line with its work for the preservation of life and prevention of accidental death, the American Red Cross has adopted a new program of emergency first aid stations on the highways of the nation, where victims of automobile injuries will be helped.

In the last year 31,000 persons were killed as the result of automobile accidents and more than 1,000,000 were injured. As its contribution to the nation wide safety campaigns of other organizations, the Red Cross will aid through the emergency stations. A number already are in operation by Chapters on such important traffic arteries as the Westchester County, N. Y., park system, the Valley Forge and Gettysburg highways in Pennsylvania and the White Horse Pike in New Jersey, connecting with Atlantic City.

Saving Mothers and Babies Is Important Red Cross Task

Saving mothers' lives and better babies were important features during the past year of the Public Health Nursing Service of the American Red Cross. About four-fifths of the 794 nurses in the Red Cross work made more than 100,000 prenatal and maternal visits, in addition to assisting doctors in the examination of 1,309,409 school children.

Statistics reveal that the lives of two out of three American women who die in maternity cases, could be saved if they received proper medical and nursing care. As more than 16,000 women die in the United States each year from various diseases of the maternal state, this means that more than 10,000 of these deaths are preventable.

Comfort Kits Sent 40,000 Service Men by Red Cross

Gay patterned crocheted bags, or comfort kits, containing articles useful and amusing, are sent by the Red Cross to 40,000 soldiers, sailors and Marines, on foreign service, as Christmas remembrances.

The little gift bags are donated and packed by women in Red Cross Chapters all over the country. They are despatched by Army transport in the early autumn in order to reach the foreign ports and posts of the U. S. services in time to be hung on the Christmas trees. Giving the remembrances from home is the outgrowth of a plan adopted by the Red Cross prior to the World War when so many National Guard regiments were on the Mexican border.

SECOND TEAM BEATS WAUKEGAN FROSH 20-0

Hallowe'en to Invade the Grade School Rooms Friday

Antioch's second team walked away with the Waukegan Freshmen Friday, the score being 20-0. It is the first game won by the local boys this season, but they are not despairing. In fact, they are working every day with an eye toward the annual game with Libertyville, Armistice Day, Tuesday, November 11th, which will be held here this year. The game scheduled for this week is with Franklin Park, or Leyden, at Leyden. Coach Watson, formerly of Antioch, is now coach at Leyden for the third year. Because of his former association with the Antioch school, the games between the two schools always create great interest.

The game with the Waukegan Freshmen was not won through any particular excellency of the local boys, or inferiority of the opponents. Touchdowns were scored in both halves, C. Florio, R. King and John Brogan going over the line. In the try for points A. Jenrich and Florio scored.

As far as the season's lineup goes, Libertyville or Warren are slated to cop the trophy, both being undefeated. Libertyville defeated Leyden, hitherto unvanquished, nearly two weeks ago. Warren and Libertyville this week.

What is Hallowe'en without a party? It simply can't be featured, that's all. What would those little folks, whose wise parents refuse to let them go out at night, and play ghost, ring doorbells, carry off wagons, or perpetrate other innocent pranks, do for their share of the fun? Never mind, there's not a particle of sense in worrying about that, because every child at the grade school will be given an opportunity to exhibit their skill in contests and games Friday afternoon.

Some of the grades are combining a Hallowe'en program with the party. The third and fourth grades will hold their frolic together.

Students in the seventh grade are preparing a play from "The Courtship of Miles Standish," by Longfellow, which will be presented at the December P. T. A. meeting. They finished reading it, and have been busy writing it in the form they will use.

Printing, ordered today, can be delivered tomorrow if you wish it

Ambition and a wholesome curiosity, denoting a desire to know and prove, is a characteristic of the sixth grade. In their nature study, they have learned the various kinds of trees, fruit and seeds, so they intend to start a nursery by planting many seeds in a corner of the school grounds where the plants will not be molested, and watch their development.

Six Foreign Countries Receive Red Cross Aid

Relief was given by the American Red Cross during the year in six foreign nations in disasters ranging from a tidal wave in Newfoundland, an earthquake in Persia, floods in France, to help the refugees from Russia and prevention of a smallpox epidemic in Costa Rica.

The $5,000 Red Cross contribution to Newfoundland, following the tidal wave, which took twenty-six lives and destroyed many homes and fishing boats, was the first from an outside country to reach the distressed people.

The sum of $5,000 was given to the fund for the relief of the Mennonite refugees of German descent, who had determined to leave Russia for new lands. About 13,000 passed through Germany, where the German Red Cross, aided by Red Cross societies of other nations, helped them. The majority are being transported to new countries in the western world and the American Red Cross has transmitted contributions from individuals in this country.

When Costa Rica was menaced by a smallpox epidemic, the American Red Cross sent fifty thousand tubes of vaccine, in two airplane loads, undoubtedly saving the country from a serious outbreak of the dread disease.

Ford Digs Two Mile Tunnel for A Billion Gallons of Water a Day

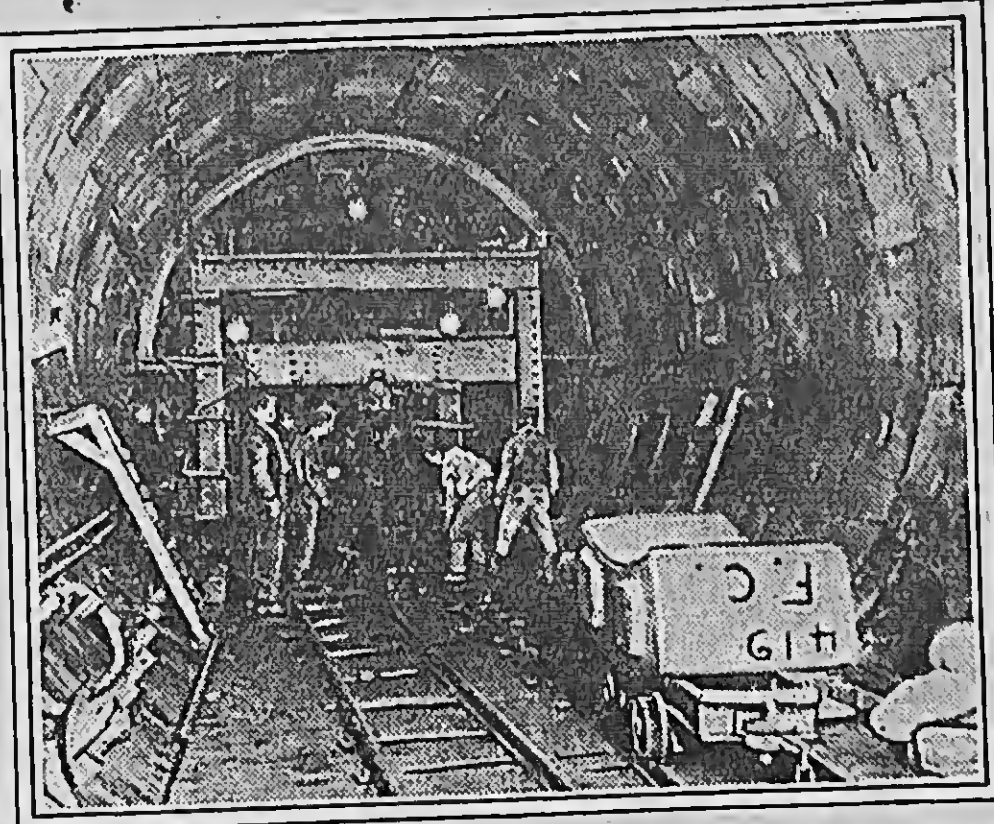

NEARLY a billion gallons of water a day—more than is used by the cities of Detroit, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and Washington combined—will be the capacity of a huge tunnel now nearing completion at the Rouge Plant of the Ford Motor Company, Dearborn, Michigan.

The tunnel will replace the present water intake system which supplies the Ford plants with 500,000,000 gallons a day. At the same time the company is remodeling its power house to greatly increase the power output. Both improvements, costing several million dollars, are being made to enlarge the production facilities of the Ford plant.

Sixty Feet Under Ground
In constructing the waterway, the largest of its kind ever undertaken by a single business concern, the engineers are burrowing sixty feet under ground for a distance of two and a fifth miles. They have gone under main highways, railroads, street car tracks, bridges, a cemetery and a creek.

One of the most difficult tasks was that of tunneling under Baby Creek at a point which is crossed by a railroad bridge and where also a large sewer is under construction by the city of Detroit. The piles that provide the foundation for the bridge and those driven by the company constructing the sewer formed a network on each side of the creek. It was the task of the Ford engineers to burrow under the creek, sewer and bridge, going between the piles without striking or weakening them.

Boring of the tunnel is accomplished by means of a shield—a large steel cylinder fourteen feet long and twenty-one foot in outside diameter with a solid steel shell or skin two and a fourth inches thick. This shield has a bulkhead which is made fast near the front end. There are four openings through which the mud streams, like toothpaste from a tube, as the shield is shoved forward by twenty powerful hydraulic jacks.

When the shield has been pushed forward sufficiently concrete blocks two and a half feet wide and five feet long, each weighing 3,420 pounds, are placed to form a ring around the circumference of the tunnel. One of them acts as a keystone so that the lining of concrete, which is eighteen inches thick, withstands the pressure of the earth. After this steel forms are set up and filled with concrete to form a solid inner lining which is also eight-teen inches thick.

The present intake system of the Ford plant has a capacity of 500,000,000 gallons a day. The new tunnel will be able to carry 913,600,000 gallons.

How to play Bridge
AUCTION or CONTRACT
by Wynne Ferguson
Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright, 1930, by Hoyle, Jr.

ARTICLE No. 1

Beginning with this article, all examples will include Contract, as well as Auction bidding; so that our readers can compare the two and thus get a good idea of Contract bidding as compared to Auction. To enable our readers to follow Contract bidding, the following summary of the main differences between Contract and Auction is given:

Contract, as the name implies, allows the player to score towards game only the number of tricks he has bid. For example, if a player bids two spades and makes four, he can only score two, the number bid, and the remaining two tricks are scored in his honor column at 50 per trick. This rule makes it necessary for players to bid for game on every hand, whether their opponents overbid or not, provided, of course, their cards warrant a try for game.

As a result, there are no "dead" hands at Contract where one player, for example, bids one heart and all pass, as occurs very frequently at Auction. When one side holds all the cards there is bound to be plenty of action whether opponents bid or not. The lucky side must bid for game if they want it and once they feel sure of game, they have the still greater incentive of trying for "slams." At Contract a little slam, if bid and made, scores 500 points and a big slam, if bid and made, scores 1000 points, so they are well worth the effort to bid and make slams offers one of the exciting features of Contract.

In the regular game of Auction you may take a chance now and then with a weak bid. It costs very little, but in Contract you'll find it very expensive. For instance, in Contract you bid one no trump with just an ordinary thin hand. What will happen? If second hand passes, your partner may have good help for a good no trump. Your partner will of course bid you up; he may be justified in bidding three no trumps. The penalties are very heavy, so bid more soundly at Contract than you ever did at Auction.

The new Contract count is very different from Auction and changes the point values of tricks and games, as follows:

Clubs.....	20 points
Diamonds.....	20 points
Hearts.....	30 points
Spades.....	30 points
No Trump.....	35 points
Game.....	100 points

From the foregoing table it will be evident that the number of tricks required to score game are exactly the same under the Contract count as in regular Auction. In other words the relative position of the minor and major suits and no trump is the same. There is one striking difference, however, and that is in the demerit of the diamond suit as a possible game scorer from an advanced score. For example, at Auction if you score three diamonds (21 points), you are in a position to score game by making one odd either in spades or in no trump; but not so at Contract. Three diamonds (60 points) plus one spade (30 points) or one no trump (35 points) no longer score game. The result of this is to demote the diamond suit to a parity with the club suit as a game scorer from an advanced score. It should be noted, however, that the diamond suit still takes precedence in the bidding (three diamonds is a higher bid than three clubs) so it is still the more valuable suit.

As a compensation for the demotion of the diamond suit as a possible game scorer from an advanced score, note the promotion of the heart and spade suits. It is now possible at Contract to go game in two deals if you score two no trumps (70 points) on one deal and one heart or one spade (30 points) on another. This is not true at Auction as two no trumps (20 points) plus one heart (8 points) or one spade (9 points) do not score game.

The next important change made by the new code is the bonus given for the winning games of a rubber. The winners of the first game of a rubber (either side) score no bonus as in Auction. The winners of the second game of a rubber (two game rubber only) score a bonus of 700 points. The winners of the second game of a rubber (three game rubber) score a bonus of only 500 points. Thus for the first time a difference is recognized between a pair winning a rubber in two games and a pair winning a rubber in three games. It has always been the writer's opinion that a pair winning a two game rubber is entitled to a greater bonus than the pair winning two games out of three and the present code has recognized the contention by according the former a greater bonus for rubber.

Another difference that should be noted between Auction and Contract is the "Vulnerable" feature of Contract. After a side wins one game, it becomes "Vulnerable." Until a side wins a game, it is "Not Vulnerable."

The effect of being "Vulnerable" is seen in the increased value of bonuses and penalties that accrue or are charged to the vulnerable pair. For example, if a side is playing an undoubted contract and is "Not Vulnerable", each under-trick is penalized 50 points per trick. On the other hand, if a side is "Vulnerable", the first under-trick is penalized 100 points and each succeeding under-trick 200 points. The only way, however, to understand these penalties and bonuses when "Vulnerable" and "Not Vulnerable" is to study the Contract Code until it is thoroughly understood.

If you want to become a good Contract player, study valuation and the fundamentals of regular Auction until you know them thoroughly. You will need them more to excel in Contract than in regular Auction. And remember, Contract is not a different game from Auction. It is only an added feature to add zest and excitement to the regular game.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I—Renewing a childish attachment, Ernestine, Ericland, of a wealthy Chicago family, is tremendously attracted by Will Todd, youthful newspaper editor, son of a not particularly well-to-do carpenter. Her sister Lillian, more of the conventional type, and aware of the attitude of the father, would take her daughter's marriage to an impecunious youth, urges Ernestine to end the affair, but the latter, capable of a passionate attachment, and realizing that in Will Todd she has found her affinity, refuses.

CHAPTER II—The love-making progresses swiftly, and finally, largely because of Ernestine's urging, they make a "runaway" marriage. Ericland is infuriated but helpless. Ernestine, being of age, and after a stormy scene the girl, with her husband, leaves her parents' home. Loring Hamilton, wealthy young lawyer, long Lillian's suitor, wins her consent to be his wife.

CHAPTER III—The bride's night is spent at Will's home, and next day they begin their married life in a single room in a humble neighborhood. Ernestine realizes the difference her marriage has made in her social sphere, but, secure in her love, faces the future bravely.

Down the wooden stairs they passed in complete silence. A new sedan stood at the curb, and Loring in majestic silence opened the car door for the girls who got in the back seat. He closed the door and got in the driver's seat and started the engine. Lillian and Ernestine sat close together in the warmth and comfort of the heated upholstery, glass-enclosed interior. Ernestine felt for the first time a poignant homesickness for comfort and convenience.

"Why didn't Will come with us?" asked Loring from the front seat.

Ernestine decided to be frank.

"You can see that Mr. Poole had been drinking too much, couldn't you? Well, Will felt that he ought to take him home and see that he got there safely. He often does that. They're good friends, you know. And you mustn't think badly of Mr. Poole. He's old, and, really, he is a wonderful man."

"But how about you? How would you have got home? Our coming along was an accident."

"Tommy Tucker would have taken me," said Ernestine calmly. "Or the Winstons, or Monsieur Mostane. I'd have gone home all right."

There was a silence of disapproval and adjustment. The car rolled smoothly along the quiet streets.

"Then everything's all right?" asked Lillian diffidently.

"Of course, darling."

"I'm so glad. Will you come and have lunch with mamma and me tomorrow and let me tell you all our plans?"

"I'll see," said Ernestine. "Now, I'll have to go home. I'm terribly tired."

"Of course you are. It's late. I'm tired, too. But Ernestine, I'm so happy that I wonder if I can be any happier." Her voice was bright and clear—quick and competent. Ernestine remembered the tears and passion of her own engagement.

"You will be happy always. You will," she said with intensity.

They left her at the stone steps and watched until she opened the door, with her latchkey and disappeared into the dark prison-like house. Then Loring turned the car about and, with Lillian at his side, started back north. Lillian cuddled against him.

"Oh, Lorie," she said sorrowfully, "she isn't happy. You know she isn't. It wouldn't be so bad for her to be poor, if only he were good to her. But you can see that he neglects her. If he cannot provide for her decently he could at least be a gentleman to her. But after all she has done for him, he mistreats her."

"Don't be disturbed about it, darling," said Loring in a low voice. "There's nothing we can do now. Only be good to her and wait for her to wake."

In Mrs. Bennett's boarding house Ernestine climbed the stairs slowly, feeling herself weak with rage.

CHAPTER V

The First Quarrel

Ernestine's anger and resentment grew like a bonfire. The small front room was cold, but she was unaware of its temperature or of the frost gathering thick on the window. Everything was fuel to the flame which burned in her. The longer Will delayed the more her anger grew. His cavalier treatment of her. Tommy could take her home! Mr. Poole needed him. More than anything else, more, she told herself, than the humiliation of Mr. Pastano's scorn was this fact, that Mr. Poole mattered more than she did.

She gave herself up to anger as she had given herself to love—with abandon. Will had neglected her. He had humiliated her. She knew that she would not have cared for any of it so much if she had not been forced to see it through the horrified eyes of her sister and Loring. They were plying her now. She could imagine Lillian's comments, Loring's sympathy. That was the crux of the whole matter. And Mr. Poole, the vile old drunkard! Was this the sort of friendship her marriage was to bring her? She had given up everything for Will—everything! Was he to sacrifice nothing for her? Could he not abandon this adoration of an obscure old man who happened to be a cartoonist? It was not necessary for these gifted people to foregather in such a place. She burned and trembled as she recalled Pastano's contempt. That strangers should need to instruct her as to her proper place—

So absorbing were her thoughts, so wrapped was she in the resounding echoes of her own inner tumult, that she did not hear the outer door nor Will's soft step on the stairs, when at last he came.

"Up, yet?" he asked in a husky whisper. "You should have been in bed two hours ago. It's cold as the devil outside. But what's the matter, kitten? Aren't you well?"

"Don't speak to me!" said Ernestine, and the fact that, like himself, she had to lower her voice in consideration for people sleeping on either side only added to her rage.

"But Ernestine!"

"Don't speak to me!" she cried again, and this time her voice was clear. "I never want to go anywhere with you again."

"Be silent," he commanded in a voice low but stern, and his eyes leaped back at her with an anger equal to her own. "Have you lost your wits? Shouting in this place in the middle of the night?"

Ernestine stood, her mouth open a little in amazement at his tone. Hot words trembled upon her tongue.

"Undress and get in bed," said Will. "What do you mean, sitting here, without more clothes on, in this key room? Do you wish to harm yourself?"

She laughed. "You are concerned about my welfare, aren't you?" she taunted him, and for answer he seized her shoulders and gave her a quick little shake.

"Ernestine," he demanded, "will you do as I say?"

She stood trembling, fighting down the stupid well of tears, reaching out after her departing anger.

"Will," her voice was as low as vital as his own—"I'm in such a rage that I have got to talk to you. You can't treat me this way. You can't leave me to the courtesy of strangers. You can't take me to such places—where there's drunkenness and immorality. You have got to be a better husband to me than that. I have given up everything for you—everything—"

"When you are in bed, I'll talk to you," he answered, as he threw off his coat and went to the wardrobe and brought her her warm dressing gown, nightgown and fur-lined moccasins. He undid the fastenings of her dress and before she could arm herself against him, he lifted it off over her head. The satin slip, the silken underthings—her body was like cold marble. In a moment, it seemed, she was in nightgown and dressing gown, in bed, and he was drawing off her gossamer hose and chafing her feet in his own cold hands until the mottled skin showed red with blood. Then he tucked her under the covers and brought a chair and sat down beside her, not touching her. Ernestine laughed again.

"If you really cared," she said, her eyes dark with anger and pain, "whether I were warmly in bed you might have come with me to see."

He was silent. He was very pale. Small beads of perspiration stood upon his forehead in the cold room.

"I am not likely to be ill," she said scornfully. "Don't be afraid of that."

Still he did not speak, but looked at her as though he were trying to arrange some momentous decision in his mind. He took a cigarette from his pocket with hands trembling so that when he lit it he burned himself, and lung the match away with an angry exclamation.

"Ernestine," he said, turning to her, "there is one thing that I will never take from you. You are hysterical now, but no matter how angry, how sick or upset you are, there is one thing that you must never say to me. Never again. I won't take it from you."

He drew the smoke into his lungs with an effort at self-control, while she stared up at the blur of him, her dark eyes swimming with tears.

"I didn't know that you gave up anything for me," he said. "I thought this marriage was on both sides the satisfying of a strong need. I never asked you to make a sacrifice for me. At least, that is not the way I thought of it, and I don't think you did either. But if you made one, I will never ask you to continue it. Any time you want what you left you have only to put on your hat and go back and get it. This must be understood between us. You are under no compulsion to stay with me. If you gave up other things, it was because this was something you wanted more. Either our marriage was a gain for both of us, or it was a mistake."

"Why don't you go ahead and remind me that I proposed to you?" she said, too helpless in her own emotions to be sensible.

"Did you?" he asked coldly. "I thought the matter was spontaneous. I thought it was inevitable. Don't cheapen yourself with such a thought. But however it happened, it was not a sacrifice. I will not be sacrificed for. I don't want anybody to give up anything for me. Understood?"

There was a moment of silence, and he went on swiftly:

"It may be that before we are through with this business of marriage it will be really hard for us. I don't know that I'll ever be what your family considers essential in a husband—a good provider. I may never make more than a small living for us. Sometimes, like now, I feel such power in me that I could go out and take life by the throat. I feel at times that there are big things in me, Ernestine. But perhaps all human beings feel that way. There are other moments when I'm not even sure that I can hold the job I have. What then? Maybe there is worse ahead of us, instead of better. What of that? Do we love each other, or don't we? Are we married, or are we simply having a lovely time and will go home when the party is over? You can do as you like. I will not interfere with your actions, but neither will I come home and account for my own. If Mr. Poole is drunk and it seems necessary to me to go home with him, you must allow me the exercise of my own judgment. I didn't leave you unprotected. In reality, you left me."

"It wasn't only that." She was actually defending herself. "It was everything. Lillian and Loring coming in on us, and Mr. Pastano—"

Half weeping, still partly in the hold of anger, she told him all that Mr. Pastano had said to her. He listened attentively, but made nothing of it.

"What do you care," he exclaimed, "what that hilly say? It's only a compliment. It's only a denial of his whole code of morals. The fact that you could sit in his dirty place and still be so clean that even he could see it, gives the lie to all he says."

"I don't understand anything," wailed Ernestine. "Only I was so hurt—I had to go off alone with them. You might have come with me. I was so happy, so thrilled, and then everything was spoiled without any warning. I can't adjust myself to things like you do—I don't understand. Of course I care what Mr. Pastano thinks. I don't want him to think you would take me out to associate with prostitutes!"

He sat on the edge of the bed now and held her hand and smoked another cigarette and thought about this. But they had come back into a calmer place. He began to reason with her in his steady voice, looking down at her with his kindled, intelligent eyes.

"You see, Ernestine, he's got the old line on things, and we, I believe, want the new. Pastano's morality and virtue are only for women. I've been there often, and he's made me very welcome. How unreal it is. Virtue is a woman's prerogative, and a stone wall about her to insure it. A harem! You don't believe in walled gardens for wives, do you, Ernestine? After all, no man can protect his wife's virtue for her. If she is determined to throw it away."

"You think then that a husband has no responsibilities at all?"

"I didn't say that. Certainly he has responsibilities. He is to provide for her to the best of his ability. He is to share all his earnings and his honors with her. He is to shelter her and speak kindly to her and love her and not find fault. He is to be faithful in word and thought. He is to be natural in his relationship with her and avoid sentimentality. But also, she is to be a woman grown and unafraid, his equal, not a child for him to protect like a child."

NINETY DISASTERS CALL FOR RED CROSS RELIEF, AT COST OF $1,200,000

Vice Chairman Fieser Cites Readiness to Act of National Society, Which Lessens Loss of Life—3,500 Chapters Aid in Work.

Readiness to act in an emergency, should a disaster strike, has become part of the Red Cross Chapter program in thousands of communities. The need for this training of local committees was revealed last year, when more than ninety communities required disaster relief work by the Red Cross.

As in former years, tornadoes brought the greatest damage. Twenty-four serious tornadoes occurred. Fire also took toll of life and property in twenty-four communities. Seven forest fires did great damage; eighteen areas were affected by floods, and also storms caused heavy losses. Other disasters were cloudbursts, cyclones, epidemics, mine explosions and shipwrecks. In the insular possessions of the United States the Red Cross gave relief in twelve disasters, chiefly from hurricanes. In foreign countries relief was given by the American Red Cross in six instances of earthquakes, floods and to refugees.

The disaster relief work of the Red Cross cost $1,200,161 last year. Statistics showed an approximate death rate of 790 persons in these disasters; buildings destroyed or damaged, 19,578; persons injured, 1,487; and persons assisted by the Red Cross, 96,872. Through disaster preparedness of Red Cross Chapters, undoubtedly great numbers of lives were saved, and much distress and grief following the calamities was prevented, according to James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations of the Red Cross.

"This type of work is supported by the memberships of citizens of the United States, their volunteer contributions, and their devoted work," Mr. Fieser said.

"Every man and woman is urged to join as a member of the local Red Cross Chapter, not only to be a partner in supporting the work through his membership, but also to serve should an emergency occur."

Life Savers Numerous

More than a quarter of a million persons are entitled to wear the American Red Cross insignia, denoting they have been taught the expert life saving methods of the organization. The number enrolled to date is 273,202.

SPECIAL BALLOTS ARE CONFUSING TO VOTERS

 Little recreation in the great outdoors, or a hunting or a fishing trip, you are met on every hand with "Keep Out," "No Trespassing," "No Fishing," and "No Swimming" signs. Try to imagine what opportunity your children's children will have to become acquainted with the great outdoors unless you now provide for them.

The proposal for the "State Wide System of Conservation and Forest Preserve and Public Recreation Grounds" is carried on a large separate ballot.

Lake county is a recreational center and it is recommended that the conservation measure receive the united support of voters here.

Banking Law Ballot
 Another of the special ballots is designated: "Banking Law Ballot" which carries the proposal to amend certain sections of the Illinois Banking law. Among the changes indicated the most conspicuous are:

The auditor will have power to more fully investigate applications for new bank charters. Minimum capital of new banks will be $50,000.00 instead of $25,000.00. A new bank is required to have a surplus of not less than ten per cent of its capital and reserve for operation of not less than five per cent of its capital. No portion of the bank's capital may be withdrawn and no dividends paid until one-tenth part of its profits, since the previous dividend, has been added to surplus until the surplus amounts to twenty per cent of the capital. The provision in the present Act authorizing the carrying of excess loans upon permit is repealed. General supervisory powers of the Auditor of Public Accounts have been materially strengthened.

State Auditor Oscar Nelson is strongly in favor of the amendments, and it is said the measure carries the endorsement of the Illinois Bankers' association.

When interviewed, officers in individual banking institutions seemed to be divided on the question. Just what the change will mean to banks and to the average individual doing business with banks, is a matter of conjecture.

The News makes no recommendation.

Women on Juries
 Shall women serve on juries? The separate ballot carrying the proposition will have little trouble in getting an affirmative vote next Tuesday. Women voters of Illinois, championed by scores of women's organizations all over the state are asking that Illinois give all citizens the same rights and obligations in the administration of justice.

Women now serve on juries in 22 states and also in Alaska and in the District of Columbia. Both the Republican state convention and the Democratic state convention have urged a favorable vote on this question. There is no reason why women should not serve on juries; and under the law certain exceptions are made—prospective mothers and women who have the care of young children will be exempt from jury service. Two propositions are carried on the ballot.

It is recommended that voters mark "yes" on both propositions.

Constitutional Amendment
 The proposed amendment to the Constitution, if adopted, is intended to revise the system of taxation in Illinois by giving the General Assembly power to enact laws relating to revenue that will relieve many of the restrictions that have existed in the tax system and allow a tax on intangibles that will tend to reduce the burden of taxation that has heretofore existed on homes, real estate and farm lands.

Faith in the General Assembly members to enact laws to carry out the provisions of the proposition, should it become law by virtue of a favorable vote Tuesday, is required if the voter would mark his ballot intelligently. The present Illinois tax system is antiquated and far behind the times and the burden of taxes continues to fall upon the classes least able to pay.

Cost of state government is not less, so if taxes on real estate are lowered more tax must be raised from other sources. Many construe the proposition as authorizing the legislature to enact an income tax.

Under the present law much taxable property is being hidden and for years has escaped being taxed. How a new law would uncover these "intangibles" is not explained. Governor Emmerson is supporting the measure, and points out that under the present tax system billions of dollars in the shape of "tax intangibles" are escaping taxation. Farmers are said to regard the proposal favorably because of the prospect of having farm land taxes reduced.

Foes of the measure are opposed to it because, they declare, it will mean enactment of an income tax. Chicago has been particularly bitter to it on the ground that if an income tax is made into law it will mean Chicago will pay ninety per cent of the state's taxes. A majority vote on the tax amendment will make it part of the constitution.

The Constitutional Amendment ballot is worth your careful consideration.

The News makes no recommendation.

Are You Wet or Dry?
 The wet and dry issue needs no explanation. The proposition is presented to voters on "Questions of Public Policy" ballot and the proposals are set forth as follows:

Shall the eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, which among other things, prohibits the manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes within the United States, be repealed?

Shall the congress of the United States modify the national prohibition act to enforce the eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States (commonly known as the Volstead act) so that the same shall not prohibit the manufacture, sale or transportation of beverages which in fact are not intoxicating, as determined by law in accordance with the laws of the respective state?

Shall the Illinois prohibition act be repealed?

The three questions were placed on the ballot through a petition containing the names of more than one million persons, most of whom were residents of Chicago, where the plan for a referendum on the liquor question originated.

Are you wet or dry?
 The five proposals will be continued on three ballots. The revenue amendment will be in the first column of the general ballot listing the candidates. The "questions of public policy," the banking and jury service amendments will compose a separate ballot and the game bond issue will comprise the third ballot.
